The New Is Old
Dioctetian Proves It
U. S. Intervention
Curious Sugar Deal

By Arthur Brisbane

There are no NEW IDEAS, only new ways of making old ideas work successfully. "In Alexandria, 150 B. C., a primitive steam 'reaction turbine' worked successfully.

A Frenchman, the Marquis De Jouffroy, developed the steamboat and demonstrated it on the river Saone long before Fulton's time, and Fulton, in a letter to Des Blances, admits it.

All is old, even NRA. Mr. George D'Ussay reminds you of the edict of Dioctetian, Roman emperor of the third and fourth centuries, A. D.

In A. D. 301 the emperor, to offset public suffering, caused by bad harvests and speculation, ordained maximum prices for foodstuffs, and for labor.

More drastic than General Johnson, he fixed death and deprivation as penalties for exceeding his maximum prices. It did not work.

Economy in government is old also. When Trajan approached, Rome to assume control of the world's greatest empire, its populace rushed to meet him, expecting the usual gorgeous procession of chariots and musical arms.

Instead they saw "only a tall, powerful man, with a remarkably upright figure, and head prematurely balded, on foot, accompanied by his wife and some private friends who had gone out to meet him."

Trajan was a success. Of his 12 immediate imperial predecessors, seven or eight had been assassinated. He walked about Rome unprotected, and without Roman taxation could always find money for magnificent public works, and for two great wars. He was so popular that when emperors after him were installed, the populace would cry out, "May he be more fortunate than Augustus and better than Trajan."

Perhaps at future inaugurations, our crowds will shout to new presidents, "May you be greater than Washington, more deeply loved than Lincoln, and greater than Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Being a pagan, Trajan had to go to hell, as a matter of course, but even there he was fortunate. Dante, in his divine comedy, tells us Trajan was released from hell, through the earnest prayers of Pope Gregory the Great, who could not bear to have such a fine man suffering forever.

P. S. Always be careful not to show familiarity with the great, on thrives in public office. George Washington told how Voltaire, having arranged a magnificent dinner to honor the valia French king, asked, when it was over, Trajan, not to eat, "It Trajan, the king turned his back on him. Worms may amuse kings, but must not think to flatter them, by comparing them with anyone else.

No American will say that Cubans are not "up to date." When Machado left, and news wires and sources were reported the able Havana newspaper, El Mundo, demanded first of all "the complete balance sheet for several days back."

Cubans, driving out Machado, emphasized their desire to avoid "the shame of United States intervention." The United States is at it again, and states that that intervention has been made unnecessary. But there was one case of intervention by the United States that was not considered "shameful." That was the intervention by Uncle Sam that put Spain out of Cuba and gave Cuba to the Cuban people.

It is to be hoped that this country will be able to help Cuba, with her difficult sugar problem, although we have crop

Liquor, obtained in some mysterious fashion, precipitated a riot today at the House of Correction on Deer Island, during which three convicts escaped by forcing a truck to drive them in a truck to the mainland.

A wholesale jail delivery was averted by guards and deputy sheriffs only because Deputy Robert Mackie hurried two tear gas bombs into the bottom of the jail driving truck, quickly converting the more than 400 hells into weepers.

Within a few minutes after the flight from the island, two of the three who escaped were captured single-handed and without weapons, by William McKusker, a Deer Island guard who was on his duty.

They are John Kowale, 26, of East Sixth st., Boston, and Charles Sullivan, alias McDonough, also of South Boston.

TRUSTY HIT OVER HEAD

The third inmate, who made a successful flight, is John J. Radger, alias O'Hara and O'Hara, of Franklin st., Dorchester, who was transferred to Deer Island on June 18 from Concord Reformatory under an indefinite term.

Kowale and Sullivan were returned to the House of Correction by McKusker, who also took back the truck, the island, and some Shirley Guit at low tide only after he had been struck on the head with a pinch-bar and his head lacerated.

Nearly 100 Boston and Winthrop police were rushed into the hunt when first reports were that 16 of the Deer Island inmates had escaped.

Police from the Boston police force from the 11 divisions ordered to send details were delayed in arriving by the necessity of racing first to police headquarters to receive riot guns and tear gas bombs.

CROWDED CONDITION BLAME

Formerly the riot guns were kept at division station houses, but some months ago Police Commissioner Hulman ordered that they be concentrated at police headquarters, with the exceptions of guns at the Rock Bay and East Boston stations.

According to officials at Deer Island, the inmates were crowded together in the cell blocks.

DEER IS. JAIL PRISONERS

Jessie Costello—Poisoner or Loving Wife?

THE PROSECUTION CLAIMS THAT:

Jessie Costello poisoned her husband. That she maintained a disgraceful affair. That out of the scant family funds she helped her lover. That in her own home, with children and relatives nearby, she was unfaithful to her husband. That she pursued and broke up the home of the man she loved. That she was frivolous, tired of her home responsibilities. That she quarreled with everyone.

THE DEFENSE CLAIMS THAT:

The State proved no murder. Jessie Costello loved her husband. That she was an ideal mother. That she was invariably kind under the burden of privation. That she not only properly attended to her own children, through human kindness took in others. That she extended her charitable activities, and very effectively, into the unemployment campaign. That everyone about her depended upon her and found her patient and helpful.

Abandoning Cat Costs Owner $5
Gordon Dwyer of Highland ave., Marshfield, formerly of Rowdian st., Cambridge, was assessed 25 cent costs today in East Cambridge district court because he abandoned a cat when the family moved.

Judge Green reprimanded the defendant not only for the suffering of the cat but for the danger to neighbors' children. The animal became "wild" according to M. S. P. C. A. agents.

"This action is being taken in the face of the great real estate assessed values of an American city ever made anywhere with the exception of Chicago," the mayor said. "An organized effort has been made to cut assessments on all types of property and despite the activity of these raiders we will be able to effect this reduction."

The mayor made his announcement shortly before making formal request of the city council for authorization for borrowing of an additional $10,000,000 in anticipation of taxes which eventually will be paid the City by the state as Boston's portion of loans imposed by the Commonwealth.

To date, the mayor has borrowed $32,000,000 out of an authorized borrowing power of $55,000,000. "It is not likely that I shall need this entire $10,000,000," the mayor said, "but I will secure the necessary borrowing power in order that I may be prepared for any occasion that may arise."

The mayor needs $3,000,000 for the welfare department, making a total of approximately $35,000,000 made available for that work this year.

He plans to raise $3,000,000 in anticipation of taxes on domestic corporations and to use this money for reduction of taxes.

$2.50 TAX CUT FOR BOSTON
Looters Ordered Shot; U. S. Ships at Havana

Havana, Aug. 14.—As two United States ships were steamed into Havana today in protest American property renewed outbreaks of looting and arson impelled the Cuban military authorities to order their soldiers to fire on all persons violating public order.

Two of Gen. Machado's country estates were sacked in celebration of the victorious revolution which forced the general to abdicate and take refuge in the Bahamas. Disorders during the night. It was revealed, resulted in the death of one person and grave injury to another.

60 BUNKER BURNED

Sixty bunkers of the Cuba Company, now bankrupt, were burned by company employees who had demanded that their 25 deposits, previously posted to insure the honest performance of their duty, be returned.

Police announced that they were searching for 27 cars which they said, belonged to the "Machado gangsters." Thirteen of these cars were armored and it was said that their occupants were disguised as soldiers, sailors and members of the police force. Others carried banners of the ABC Society, one of the organizations which led the successful fight to oust Machado.

Cuba's new President, Dr. Carlos Manuel De Cespedes, moved into the presidential palace while a crowd of 10,000 persons stood outside cheering with almost as much side cheering with almost as much

CLARK ENDS LAST PLEA FOR ACQUITTAL OF JESSIE COSTELLO

BULLETIN

Salem Courthouse, Aug. 14—"Don't send the name of justice and right and reason and humanity—acquit this woman." With the dramatic plea for Jessie Costello's life this afternoon, William G. Clark, whispering shouting for nearly four hours, ended his final argument. In the defendant's chair the woman wept silently.

By WIN BROOKS

Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Salem Courthouse, Aug. 14—"Don't send the woman—this mother—to the electric chair on the story that fell from the leperous lips of Edward J. McMahon and from the poisonous lips of John Costello, Jr."

In the high-ceilinged courtroom where the life of Jessie Costello hangs in the final balance, the little graman who has directed her defense at her trial for the poison murder of her husband, rose today to oratorical heights as he delivered his final argument.

William G. Clark, former district attorney of this county, pacing the aisle, whispering, shouting, pounding the rail of the jury box, spiking McMahon to the cross of his own confession that he was Jessie's paramour for three months before her husband's death.

"McMahon—the viper," he cried, and the three words crashed off the walls and rebounded and resounded and lived here in the courtroom long after they were spoken.

Jessie wept, silently, the tears streaming down her cheeks. Clark, with the steady sum of his fan, over the box where the jury men sit, who will decide the woman's fate, were the only sounds.

The state has failed to prove its case. Clark cried. The state has failed to prove even this death was murder, but has asked this jury to guess.

State Wants You to Guess It Was Murder
One by one he took up the state's charges, the state's witnesses, and blamed them, sometimes with a condescending, patronizing criticism, to be kind to their errors—sometimes with a vituperation that had them to whom he was referring, squaring in their chairs.

"The state has said to you: 'I won't say how this poison was administered, by finger nail or by capsule—but I want you to say by guess and speculation and send this woman on the last walk to the electric chair.'"

"For shame," he cried. "They credit this woman with the ability of a tigress of Liberia. But in the next breath they are forced into the admission that if she planned a crime her open purchase of cyanide was a mistake."

SIX FIREMEN OVERCOME IN CAMBRIDGE

2-Alarm Fire Sweeps
Landmark; Second
There in Week

Six firemen were overcome today during a two-alarm fire in a two- and a half-story duplex dwelling house at 30-32 Magazine st., Cambridge, one of the landmarks of the city.

The building is occupied on one side by a room registry, closed for the summer, and on the other by Flames were seen on the roof by one passerby, who sounded an alarm, and by a second passerby who sounded another alarm. There were also several alarms telephoned, and the result was that nearly every piece of fire apparatus in the city responded, drawing a sum of more than 2000.

FISH HEARING

SET FRIDAY

Washington, Aug. 14 (AP)—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced today a hearing on a proposed code for the New England mackerel industry will be held Friday at the Gloucester, Mass., Fisheries Exchange.

The administration announcement said fishermen have suggested a voluntary agreement in effect since May 22 among the sailing masters operating out of Gloucester be extended to the entire industry. Early action is sought because

Under the agreement, railings are regulated to restrict supply in an attempt to maintain minimum prices. Through a pool arrangement all producers share alike in the proceeds.

VICTIM SPARES HIS ATTACKER

John Mallin, 70, who lives on Pine st., South End, was beaten up in a cell in the Joy st. police station early today, but he refused to testify against his assailant and thereby saved his attacker from

The man who allegedly administered the beat to Malone was his cell-mate, Thomas Gallagher, 43, of Cambridge st., West End, arrested for being drunk, as was Malone.

Judge Michael J. Murray, when he saw the marks of the beating on Malone, refused entirely to accept the plea for clemency which Malone made.

"To beat an old man like you is a terrible thing," declared the court. "I intended giving Gallagher six months in jail, but in view of the plea you have made I'll cut the sentence to one month."

The court arranged for Malone to be removed to a home for treatment.

FIRST AND EXCLUSIVE PICTURES SHOW MACHADO OUSTING

JOYFUL CROWD CIRCLES BODY OF SLAIN "PORRA" CHIEF AS HAVANA EXULTS OVER MACHADO ROUT
The body of Antonio Jimenez, head of the "Porra," Machado's police assassin, is seen here lying in a Havana street after he was slain by a mob of revolutionists. Warmly embraced by a comrade, the man who "put the finishing touches" to Jimenez is being congratulated as he stands over body. The Porrist leader, was shot in an American drugstore in Havana.

RIFLE BRINGS LIBERTY TO CUBA

A hero for all time to come is the lot that faces the Cuban revolutionist shown held high on the shoulders of a liberty-loving throng in the first pictures of the Cuban revolt. The revolutionist is shown holding aloft the rifle with which he shot down Antonio Jimenez, head of the Machado police and characterized by the residents of the island as "The Butcher of Cuba." The rifleman brought down Jimenez in the battle that followed the abdication of Machado. (By International News Photos.)

DESTROY MACHADO PLAQUE

As anti-Machado forces dance and sing about him, a Cuban revolutionist swings a heavy hammer to destroy Machado plaque on palace exterior. A movie man was on the spot.

TRUCK LOAD OF CELEBRANTS WHEELS THROUGH HAVANA

Rifles grasped tightly, joyful citizens and soldiers rode through Havana to the cheers of the populace. Troops quelled rioting after presidential palace was sacked, but many men in uniform were among the avengers of Machado's reign of terror.

ATTEMPT TO KILL NEW PRESIDENT

Carlos Manuel de Céspedes, new head of Cuba, and his wife. Armed men in automobiles fired shots at his home on Sunday. He is provisional president until Congress meets.

FRENZIED CUBANS DESTROY FURNITURE AT MACHADO'S PALACE

Following the resignation of President Machado and his flight pulled valuable works of art from the walls of the palace and to Nassau, B. W. L., riotous celebrants tore furniture to bits—tossed them out. Wreckage filled many of the streets.

MORE FURNITURE DESTRUCTION

The man on the balcony was tossing valuable articles out of upper rooms, as crowd below played havoc by destroying everything that could be reached, all owned by Machado regime, at the presidential palace. Many public buildings were wrecked, including one of the newspaper offices.

THE SEASIDE RESORT OF COHASSET was conspicuously gay last evening . . . the officers of His Majesty's ship Danes, which arrived in Boston and tied up at the Charlestown Navy Yard, were guests of honor at a dance at the yacht club and a very merry party it turned out to be . . .

Capt. C. H. Knox-Little of the visiting hound of the sea was host in the afternoon at a reception and tea on board of the many hostesses and their friends who were entertaining his officers during their stay in this port . . . the popular Mrs. Charles Higginson motored up with a party of friends, driving down around 7 o'clock to be hostess to a group of the handsome officers, and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hendrie, Miss Katha Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Cunnner, Miss Ruth Sears, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pattee . . . The yacht club was very chummy with flags and colored lanterns . . . hundreds of glistening motors parked along the shore line . . . sounds of sweet music floated across the deepening night and a lazy moon hung around to make things just divine for those who lingered in their cars

FRANCES WILLIAMS between dances . . . Mr. and Mrs. William B. Long of Marlborough st. and Cohasset were entertaining the pretty debutante of a couple of seasons ago, Frances Williams, Mrs. Elliot Hubbard, Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Wheeler from Manchester, who were also week-end guests . . . Just across the road from the club in a cozy yellow cottage Mrs. "Dick" Waters dispensed good cheer to a large group of young people who later went on to the dance . . . her handsome son, Dick, went up to the tea on board the Danes with Barbara Fitch, one of the charming daughters of Mrs. Conover Fitch . . .

Katherine Johnson Attends MUCH TO THE DISAPPOINTMENT of the Fair Things the British officers attended the dinners and dance without their uniforms . . . we could have explained that they are not permitted to wear their gold buttons ashore and are only too delighted to have a chance to get into flannels and evening clothes for a change . . . They were very young looking even for officers . . . we might also have explained that British officers as a rule do not care much for American girls . . . they very likely got fed up with them at Bar Harbor, where they were ashore last week.

Pretty Katherine Johnson, one of the bright lights of last season in the social world, attended the dance in a dark blue polka dot over which she wore a scarlet cape, very fetching . . . Her aunt, Mrs. Charles Higginson, wore a grey-blue shiny crepe with deeper blue beads . . . Mrs. Elliot Hubbard, Jr., was charming in peche crepe with pleated skirts . . . she was hostess to a group of young people this week in honor of Deborah Perkins, one of the buds of last season . . . Mrs. Bradford Hardon, whose daughter Beatrice came out last season, was beautifully gowned as she floated by us on the dance floor . . . Beatrice is visiting down on Squirrel Island in Maine for the week-end . . .

Leslie Blake in Satin Gown MISS PRESCOTT CUNNER, ALWAYS NOTICEABLY well-dressed, was in a youthful white organza of the mode . . . we adore the sheer cottons for summer evenings and they do appear most suitable . . . Katha Hall, who did reside in Scituate at one time, was gay in a black and blue gown which was very becoming . . . and Pepsey Leslie Blake was the centre of a stag line in a peacock green satin with diamond earrings . . . Leslie the indefatigable . . . It was pleasant to see Dodo Dean, one of the evening's hostesses, her old lively self as she chatted with the grey sack coats and white flannels, the dress which most of the officers chose for this affair . . . Kitty Gardner, titian-haired debutante of last season, was very pretty in a red-striped yellow organza . . . The lovely daughter of the Harold Tolmans of Cohasset (you know he is one of the important members of the committee of the Cohasset Horse Show, which takes place on August 24, 25 and 26) was having a huge time with the swains . . .

Uean Hall Gay in Soft Pink Shades SAM BARTOW WAS THERE, SO WE NATURALLY looked around for Anna Bird, and found her in a love of a frock dancing with the Englishmen . . . Talented Jean Hall, always a headliner with U.S. was gay in the soft pink shades of dawn . . . Jean has a crooning voice which she hope to hear again this winter at some popular rendezvous . . . Mrs. Richard Waters was distingue as always in sheer black chiffon which acts off her silver hair and merry smile . . . Marjorie Chapin in a pink tulle made her guests merry . . . she was one who gave a large dinner before the dance . . . We enjoyed the play "What Every Woman Knows" by J. M. Barrie at the Playhouse before the dance and loved Edith Barrett as Maggie Wylie . . . saw Helen Homans in a lightning stripe red and white dress and dark-eyed Anna DeKornas who also enjoyed the play . . . These plays are going to continue for three weeks more, and it is good news indeed . . . they are certainly enjoyable and it is grand to see New York plays before they reach Broadway, is it not so?

Saratoga Springs Is Swept by Storm Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Several small buildings were damaged and hundreds of trees blown down here in a violent storm which swept for 50 miles across Eastern New York from Saratoga Lake to the Vermont State line.

Boy Scouts Feted at European Jamboree Godello, Hungary, Aug. 14.—With crowded program of entertainment at following church services the boy scouts in the Jamboree Camp enjoyed colorful but clear weather on their last Sunday here . . . The French scouts gave an elaborate entertainment in the arena of exploring through the ages.

The attempt to boost the historical stock of the late General Robert E. Ingersoll, in connection with the centenary of his birth, which occurred last Friday, seems not to have come to much. I had heard last spring that there was going to be a large memorial mass-meeting held on some Sunday around this time, but I have heard nothing of it since, and I am disappointed about it, and am sure that it is not being held.

As a matter of fact, about the only people who are still interested in Bob Ingersoll are the old-time, die-hard, stalwart Republicans of an earlier dispensation and the equally old-time, die-hard free-thinking radicals, who still cling to the revelations of Henry George and Edward Bellamy as the best guides for the times.

At home I have a biography of Ingersoll by Cameron Rogers, but don't have time to read it. There can be no doubt that in his day, the general immediately following the Civil War, he was an outstanding figure. He was a gallant and well-known soldier, who won his spurs under Gen. Miles. Important, he was perhaps the most famous lay orator of his day, dying with Henry Ward Beecher in popular fame. On the occasion of the famous dinner to Grant, where Max Twain stunned his hearers by putting the General to sleep by trying to put him to sleep as a baby trying to put him to sleep, the author of "Tom Sawyer" wrote in his own words with lavish adulation about Ingersoll's great speech. Everybody interested in politics knew by heart that passage in his nomination speech for James C. Hiram, in which which Blaine derided his title "the Plumed Knight." But Cartmell, who gave Blaine a title "the Plumed Knight," and it is that title which has stuck in history.

Ingersoll was a curious example of how water-gate is the compartments in personality. In politics he was a machine politician, in philosophy a radical. He was the silver tongue of the party that successfully used Grant and Blaine for political plunder. He was a "stalwart," denouncing the young muckrakers like Lodge and Roosevelt, who wanted reform. He used his great oratorical gifts to aid in perpetuating the rule of the New York crowd, which in turn gave him the rule of Hanna and the Ohio crowd, and, three years later, under Harding, to the Ohio gang again. He was a faithful party man.

If there is little in present political conditions to make anyone look back with interest in Ingersoll's political activities, there is very little in politics in modern life to make anyone think to regard his influence as a live force today. Most of what he preached in liberal granted today by liberal protestants and by the very growing body of the protestant unchurch.

There can be no doubt, however, that Ingersoll played an important part in making the American people at large familiar with the tenets of what used to be called "free thought." He secured and edited the community magazine and his books "The Mistakes of Moses," "Bible Stories," and "Why I Am Not a Christian," which were written by Henry Ward Beecher, most eloquent and most liberal of the great preachers of the free-thought movement, accepted, his intelligence and his personality, but in the present man and layman in general, Ingersoll was the personal emissary of Old Nick himself. Indeed, after his death exactly the same sort of stupid his concerning his death and spirit and his personality was spread abroad as about Voltaire.

Ingersoll called himself an agnostic, a name made popular then by Huxley who denied vehemently that he was an atheist, but as an earlier generation of his called themselves Deists. As far as I can tell, Ingersoll was merely a modern version of Thomas Paine, author of "The Age of Reason." Tom Paine's stock has been going up since the days when Theodore Roosevelt called him a "filthy little atheist," and he is probably more popular today than ever before, when only followed the furrows Paine had ploughed.

Both believed in a Supreme Being, and good and evil, but refused to accept the Christian revelation and, particularly, refused to accept the Bible as literally inspired and without error. The tenets of the liberal agnosticism of the Bible, especially the Old Testament, both of their personal efficiency and shrewdness. Today, when most educated people, both within and without the church, accept the historical view of the scriptures and refuse to take the mistakes of Moses seriously, there is little chance to stir up a new interest in Ingersoll.

But there can be no doubt that in the days after the Civil War, when the Calvinistic spirit was still in the saddle, Ingersoll did yeoman work in freeing people's minds from the influence of the value of a man's personal religion depends on his believing in the literal, historical authenticity of a particular book. He paved the way for the liberal agnosticism that makes religion a matter of personal illumination rather than a matter of a book.

LEGION VICTOR
IN DISPUTE
OVER RADIO

The feud between the Massachusetts department of the American Legion and Walter E. Meyers, New England representative of the National Broadcasting Co., had ended today with Meyers apologizing to the Legion for denying them the rights of radio stations WJZ and WRZA.

Meyers, a member of Crowscap Popham Post, A. L., which was suspended last May because of conduct unbecoming and prejudicial to the Legion, banned the Legion from the radio on May 20.

Meyers, a member of Crowscap Popham Post, A. L., which was suspended last May because of conduct unbecoming and prejudicial to the Legion, banned the Legion from the radio on May 20.

At the time he declared the ban was imposed because the Legion "was more than an occasion departed from the text submitted in advance of the broadcast for review and approval" and had tended "to disturb public confidence in the President."

In his letter of apology Meyers wrote:

"I am convinced by what I have since learned that the officials of the department of Massachusetts of the American Legion and the speakers on the program have had no desire to do anything to offend the President of the United States. I am certain that the Legion is a patriotic organization and that it is in the best interests of the country that it should be able to broadcast its programs."

The letter was made public by Harold P. Fadden, department adjutant of the Legion. At the same time he released a letter from M. J. Ayresworth, president of the NBC in Judge Advocate Charles P. Fadden.

In the letter Ayresworth wrote:

"In writing the letter referred to and distributing it to the public, Mr. (Meyers) exercised his authority and fully understands that he should not have written the communication."

Rails Improve

[illegible]

One important eastern railway president confides in me that railway way conditions and railway prospects have improved tremendously. His own company, heretofore in the black, is now comfortably in the red. He is wiping out the deficit incurred in the deplorably unsatisfactory first quarter of this year.

The railway outlook here in the underdone gratifying change where the Interstate Commerce Commission has ruled that the overloads—were consistently persistently whittling down railroad rates for the next week. He recognizes the need for helping the railroads to live, to make ends meet.

The prospect now is that new

The tragic majority of rail stockowners cannot expect much relief from the government.

Stock and bonds quotations last week improved. The rebound in stocks was rather impressive.

Commodity prices for a few commodities ended the week more than demoralized, notwithstanding the fact that the government had issued by the Department of Agriculture, estimating the shortage of wheat at 100,000,000 bushels.

Double the maximum sanction declines on Friday and Saturday.

Tractor and light crop prices extraordinarily light. Crops were partly due to the scheduled harvest.

On Tuesday of this week, C. mainly, crop calculations did not show any effect on the market.

Cotton Rallies in New York Dealing

New York, Aug. 14 (INS)—Cotton futures rallied sharply toward midday today to score gains of 1 1/2 to 3 1/2 cents a quarter, a half off suffering early losses of a half dollar. The market opened off 7 1/2 to points after Liverpool cables showed comparable losses and the London market was in a similar position. Late prices were up 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 with October up 6 at 38. December up 6 at 9.57 and March up 9.75.

Strength in Golds

Feature in London
London, Aug. 14 (AP)—Strengthening in gold shares owing largely to the South African demand was the feature of the Stock Exchange today. Pressure of investment money helped gilt edged securities while German bonds weakened after steady opening. Transatlantic streets, lacking a lead from Wall Street over the week-end, were

Recovery Is at High Level

"Payment of higher wages under the NBA codes will generally prevent the conversion of cash to barter, which has increased net, on as great a scale as is usually the case in periods of recovery. Part of the outflow, however, will be in the form of advanced price in the form of advanced price and expanded volume should tend to lower costs.

"There is no occasion to regard the present contracting profiles as a harbinger of economic prosperity. While their positive benefits to hules as a whole may be slow in appearing, an increase in the number of hardships in the meantime the fact remains that they need to remedy inadequate purchasing power. There can be no question that various laws are a stimulant will result."

ROSLINDALE TAKES ROSEBUDS IN 4TH RACE OF SERIES

NEW DEAL WHERRY SKIPS ALONG THE CHARLES

Jeannette Osborn of Cambridge smiles with delight as she tries out the new style wherry, designed by Andy Anderson of the Wood Boat Club. The new craft costs about one half of the price of the standard wherry. It was designed to help popularize rowing. Not only is the new boat cheaper, but it has shown a good turn of speed. A number of these wherries will be completed for use before long. And in a year or so the craft will be flocking to regatta competition.

ROSLINDALE

The good night air of Curtis Pullerton, which must be played at some such durable substance, will be whirled into action tonight, when the Rosinbuds play Rosinbuds in the fourth game of the five-game series which carried the Park Department League championship.

Pullerton is an old timer in years, but not in the game. He has played on both sides of the ball in the first three games of the series. He is a good player, but he is not a star. He is a good player, but he is not a star. He is a good player, but he is not a star.

CONQUERED ROSEBUDS

He put Rosinbuds back into the running by beating the Rosinbuds in the third game of the series last Friday night at Fallon Field and hopes to even the series at two each tonight at Billings Field, West Roxbury.

MARK MCCORMICK

Mark McCormick, a young fellow who was south of the line last spring, is likely to be the star of the Manager Jerry Shanahan's team. McCormick got credit for the second Rosinbuds victory over the Rosinbuds in the first game of the series.

ONE OF THE FEATURE CHAIRS

The Harriman Bank and New York Clearing House

THE case of the Harriman National Bank has turned out to be in some respects the case of the New York Clearing House Association.

The irregularities which brought about the bank's downfall—the false book entries, the faked accounts, the use of depositors' balances, etc.—are of the type which tragic experience has made only too familiar.

If this were all there is to the case of the Harriman Bank, it would not be one of striking interest nor call for extended comment. But there is much more to it than this—as becomes clear in the light of the following facts:

1.—The New York Clearing House Association was informed of the condition of the bank in the early part of July, 1932.

2.—The Association practically took charge of the bank on July 12th, 1932.

3.—It was kept open notwithstanding its insolvent condition until closed on March 6th, 1933, nine months thereafter, never to reopen.

4.—Throughout this period and despite the known insolvency of the bank, deposits were invited and received from an unsuspecting public, which was later to discover that it had been duped and betrayed.

IT MAY be asked, what was the Government doing all this time?

What about the Federal Banking Law, designed to protect depositors in national banks?

What of the Comptroller of the Currency, who is charged with the supervision and examination of national banks, and whose duty under the law is to close a bank when its condition is impaired and the continued receipt of deposits would be a fraud upon the public?

Here again it is manifest how completely the Harriman Bank case has become the case of the New York Clearing House Association.

The Association is an old and honorable body. It embraces in its membership all the leading banks of the great financial metropolis of New York.

It is supposed to embody and INSTITUTIONALIZE the highest traditions of the banking profession—the sensitive honor, the high scruple as a trustee and vigilance as a custodian, which legend rather than contemporary opinion ascribes to the banker.

Conscious of its pretensions, if not observant of its duties, the Clearing House Association loftily assured the Comptroller of the Currency that there was no occasion for his intervention in the matter.

Of course not. The Clearing House Association had taken the situation in hand and would see its "member" through!

What more was to be said? The Federal authorities apparently thought nothing more was to be said—or done.

Month after month passed. The deposits flowed steadily in. The insolvency grew steadily worse.

But the Clearing House Association was in charge.

"The Clearing House members have voluntarily imposed upon themselves rigid

ORGANIZED 1853

"The Maintenance of Conservative Banking through Wise and Intelligent Cooperation"

An excerpt from the Constitution of the New York Clearing House Association

"The objects of the Association shall be the effecting at one place of the daily exchanges between the members thereof and the payment of the balances resulting from such exchanges, the promotion of the interests of the members and the maintenance of conservative banking through wise and intelligent cooperation."

A Safeguard for Six Billions of Bank Deposits

THE statement of the members of the New York Clearing House Association for the week ended September 7, 1929, shows the following interesting figures:

Total Capital	$611,625,300
Total Surplus and Undivided Profits	1,099,230,400
Average Net Deposits	6,362,883,000

Realizing the responsibilities involved in the care of these funds, the Clearing House members have voluntarily imposed upon themselves rigid standards of practice for the protection of their own interests and the interests of their depositors.

The Association requires weekly reports from the members and makes periodical examinations of the condition of each bank. These examinations give particular attention to the soundness of the assets of each member, and are made in the light of intimate knowledge of the affairs of the New York banks and of general conditions.

If you are a depositor of a Clearing House bank you can feel that, in addition to the safeguards provided through Federal and State supervision, your funds have the protection afforded by membership in an organization whose fundamental purpose is to assure sound banking.

standards of practice for the protection of their own interests and the interests of their depositors."—So ran the advertisements of

for the bank by banking memberships in an organization "whose fundamental purpose is to assure sound banking." The Harriman National Bank & Trust Company is listed as a member in the third column of names.

the Clearing House Association, published broadly in the press.

"The Association requires weekly reports from the members and makes periodical examinations of the condition of each bank"—continue these broadcast advertisements.

"These examinations give particular attention to the soundness of the assets of each member, and are made in the light of intimate knowledge of the affairs of the New York banks and of general conditions."

Why should the Comptroller of the Currency examine or worry about a bank, even if known to be impaired, which is a member of the Clearing House Association?

What does the occasional examination of a bank examiner amount to, anyway, compared to the "weekly reports" required of its members by the Clearing House Association, and the latter's recurrent examinations with "particular attention to the soundness of the assets of each member?"

But there is more to it!

IF YOU will examine the facsimile of one of these advertisements of the New York Clearing House Association, which we reproduce on this page, you will see that—

"If you are a depositor of a Clearing House Bank you can feel that, in addition to the safeguards provided through Federal and State supervision, your funds have the PROTECTION AFFORDED BY MEMBERSHIP in an organization whose fundamental purpose is to assure sound banking."

Well, the depositors of the Harriman Bank are in a better position to estimate the value of such assurances than anyone else.

The Harriman National Bank and Trust Company was a member of the Clearing House Association. Its depositors had all the protection for their funds "afforded by membership in the Association," which they were assured went FAR BEYOND THE SAFEGUARDS provided through Federal and State supervision.

Now many members of the Clearing House Association insist that the Association's assurances amounted to nothing and that there is no legal obligation on the part of the Association to make good to the depositors of the Harriman Bank who had faith in the Association's assurances.

THESE members believe that without legal responsibility the word of the Association is worthless.

The question now before the Clearing House Association, and before the public, too, is simply this:

Must the depositors go to court to make the Clearing House Association live up to its assurances; and without the compulsion of the law, is the word of the Association worthless?

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Diary of a modern Peppys: Up and talked to a broke and vagabonding friend in London who leaves me all day with the molybrads. A note from Faith Baldwin; she has four youngsters instead of the two stated. And Alice Lamb sends her new book, "Lost Fragments," which quines my column.

My column done, my wife and I to Brooklyn to see a newly whelped litter of Boston puppies, there being 13, the largest ever I saw. Then to Emily Vanderbilt's and talked to her new husband, Raoul Whitfield, and Elsie Arden sang a semi-blue chant "It's Your Last Trip, Titanic!" creepingly dramatic.

In the gloaming to Rube and Irma Goldberg's in Great Neck, they having rented the castle of Arthur Hammerstein along the shore. And many came including Gene and Helen Buck, Earl Anthony, the John P. Medburys, May Allison Quirk, and the Leon Gordons. Home early reading "The Shanghai Bund Murders."

Mary DeBeck, wife of Billy, the cartoonist, was waiting an elevator in a hotel in Cannes recently. As she was about to step in, a very black gentleman swathed in towel, rubbing up and over the car, Mrs. DeBeck stepped out, remarking "I'll take the next one." At tea she learned it was the Sultan of Morocco.

They were talking of Jack London's advice to young writers. A rugged disciple of reality, he believed most literary efforts were nanby-pamby. "The way to write," he roared, "is to keep writing and re-writing your story until you don't feel a single twitch of nausea."

London was the most restless of sleepers. His nights were a torture of tossing and tumbling. Often he would drop off a few minutes and then quickly awaken, seized with some idea which consumed him and made slumber impossible. In later years he had a triple sized bed. Otherwise he would flop him self to the floor during the night.

Thingumbobbs: Peter Arno usually has his chauffeur in the back seat while Arno does the driving. H. L. Mencken was first to coin the phrase "the Bible Belt." Sir Arthur Quiller Couch's last name rhymes with "hooch." Mary Brown Warburton doesn't like animals of any kind. Bud Kelland, the author, was once a star quarterback. Ben Pinney wears checkered shirts of flaming red. Charlie McAdam is an expert hammer player. Dick Hyland's were born companions. If his dogs showed a fondness for prospective job-holders, James Gordon Bennett hired them. W. R.

Heart, Jr. takes his Sealymph up in his plane. When the world has forgot Noel Coward and other playwrights who make-up questionable topics, it will remember George M. Cohan and the lean pine tang of his plays. Nor has he any grandiose illusions about his efforts. Walking around the reservoir one day, a friend said of his "Pigsons and People!" "George, you delivered a great message in that one." Cohan quickly whined: "There was no message. I just kept the ball in the air two hours."
